

INA E. GORDY
HONORS COLLEGE

active learning

research

high-impact experiences
outside the classroom

citizenship

INA E. GORDY
HONORS COLLEGE

active learning

academic community

living-learning community

other four-year students and transfers

honors coursework

senior research project

INA E. GORDY
HONORS COLLEGE

initiatives

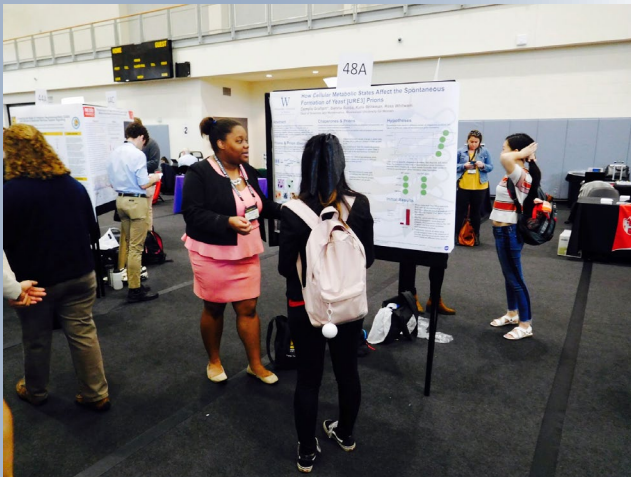

a more diverse community

broadening opportunities in research for honors students and students across campus

conferences

Merge

Coffee with Scholars

INA E. GORDY
HONORS COLLEGE

high-impact experiences

Honors Study Abroad and Away

Community Engagement courses

Nancy Yates Fellowships

Summer Community Engagement Program

Coming in from the cold: Compassion, teamwork drives development of new warming shelter

From left, Mississippi University for Women Honor College students Treasure Heath and Cayla Skinner assist Community Outreach Director Glenda Buckhalter Richardson in setting up cots Thursday at the temporary emergency warming shelter in Columbus. The shelter, located at the Farmers Market Annex at the corner of Second Avenue and Third Street North, is open from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. tonight, Monday and Tuesday nights during sub-freezing temperatures, available for the homeless or for homeowners and renters without heat. Heath is from Starkville. Skinner's hometown is New Orleans. Photo by: Deanna Robinson/Dispatch Staff

Jan Swoope
January 18, 2020 10:00:38 PM

INA E. GORDY
HONORS COLLEGE

support for students

Honors Peer Mentors

Honors Mentors as RAs

mental health services

academic support

recruitment of transfers

